ANECDOTES OF HAMLIN.

Defeated for the Senate by a Hair. While Mr. Hamlin was Speaker of the Maine Assembly there was in that body a certain gentleman of faultless attire, pleasing manners, good address and some reputation. This gentleman had one foible, that is to say, one pronounced and particular foible—his hair was thin, and he was sensitive in regard to it. To hide his approaching baldness he had a habit of carefully, with bandoline and other preparations, stroking each particular hair which was left to him into its place. One day, while in the chair as Speaker, Mr. Hamlin, in the innocence of a good and joke-loving nature, sent for this gentleman, and, looking fixedly at his smooth and polished pate, said, with achuckle: "Blank, old fellow, I just wanted to tell you that you've got one of your While Mr. Hamlin was Speaker of the "Blank, old follow, I just wanted to tell you that you've got one of your hairs crossed over the other."

"You insult me, sir; you insult me," replied the member, with unexpected and altogether unnecessary indignation, and then, refusing to listen either to reason or explanation, he left the Speaker's desk and returned to his seat. When Mr. Hamlin became a candidate for the United States Senate this gen-tleman was a member of the Upper tleman was a member of the Upper House of the Maine Legislature, and positively refused, though a member of the same party, to vote for the man by whom he believed he had been insulted. So it was that Hannibal Hamlin was de-feated for a seat in the Senate by a hair. In the end his strength was thrown for Mr. James W. Bradberry, and that gentleman was elected to succeed George

The Only Effort to Corrupt Him.

Mr. Hamlin during his half century of public service was personally aware of only one legislative transaction which could even remotely be called corrupt. That was many years ago. A certain bill was under consideration, and a Senator, going to his desk, said:

"Mr. Hamlin, if this bill passes the bonds will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. I can take you, or let you send, to a place where you can now get any quantity of the bonds you want for six cents on the dollar. What do you say to the chance.

six cents on the donar.

"I say damn your chance and damn your bonds, sir," was the only reply of the indignant Maine Senator as he turned his back upon the man who he believed had insulted him. This, as has been said, was the only instance in which Mr. Hamlin was ever approached with a corrupt proposition. Frequently, however, like many other Senators, he had received innocent letters from constituents who, knowing no better, had had received innocent letters from con-stituents who, knowing no better, had offered him small sums of money as an inducement to perform certain services which they required at his hands. It had always been his pleasure in a per-sonal communication to set such mis-guided people right in regard to what he thought to be the duties of a public servant.

BOARDING-HOUSE BASE BALL. Why a Pessimist Was Forced to Leave His

"Making a double play unassisted," was her prompt response.

He looked pained, but said nothing.
A moment later when a codfish-ball was gallantly declined by the dude, who insisted on passing it to his fair neighbor, the dry goods clerk on the other side of the table cried out.

"Passed ball!"

The pessimist fingered his knife ner-vously as he glared at the clerk, and had hardly recovered his composure when the waitress kicked the cat through the doorway and the pretty typewriter "Put out."

"Put out."
And the young lawyer added:
"Safe hit!"
He hardly had time to shift his reproachful glance from the pretty typewriter to the young lawyer when the old maid began telling what a brute the man next door was, and the real estate agent sang out:
"Score one!"

In rhilroad circles there is considerable interest manifested in the reported sale of the famous "Rainbow" route of Otto Mears, says the Leadville Herald. The report serves to draw attention to what is undoubtedly one of the most unique lines of railroad in the world. The road is not more than twelve miles in length, extending from Silverton to Ironton, but as a marvelous result of engineering skill, deserves to rank as one of the wonders of the world. No one was quite so near heaven on a rank as one of the wonders of the world. No one was quite so near heaven on a railroad as when traveling in one of Mears' "baby" passenger cars.

The trip from Silverton to Tronton leaves a vivid impression on the mind of the tourist. It skirts the edge of unfathomable abysses, winds over mountain peaks, through regions of eternal snow, leaps cataracts, spans gorges, and finally bumps right into the solid wall of the granite mountain.

How this obstruction is overcome is not at first apparent, but by the aid of a complicated set of turntables, engines and cars are turned around and sail merrily down the hill to their destination.
